

“We had seventy women at the conference and they were extremely happy with the kits. It was received with great appreciation and joy. Thank you for allowing us to experience the joy and blessing from the women in Africa by being able to bless them with the kits. Seven Muslim women received Christ during the conference.”

“Today we handed [kits] out to the young school girls and young women of the village of Mapaleng in Lesotho, Africa. I wish I could explain to you their enthusiasm and actual cries of joy!...Your faithfulness to the women of Africa has made a huge impact.”

What Is Project Patricia?

The Need

Having adequate period protection is something women in America rarely have to think about. We recognize that many girls and women in less fortunate countries have nothing to use during “that time of the month.” Often times, school-age girls are confined to their beds for that week, missing so much school they are either unable to graduate, or eventually drop out of school. We find it tragic that something God created to be beautiful could be so hopelessly embarrassing for some.

Meeting The Need

Project Patricia sews cloth washable, reusable maxi pads for women and girls of menstruating age in African countries.

Each woman and girl receives a kit containing five pads and a waterproof storage bag. Project Patricia works with individual missionaries and missions groups to carry and distribute the kits. Project Patricia also partners with Hands on Africa to distribute kits.

Mission

Our mission is to bring glory and honor to our Lord Jesus Christ through service to women in Africa by meeting a physical need as an avenue to demonstrate Christ's love and share His gospel with them.

How Is The Gospel Shared Through Project Patricia?

- Meeting the physical needs of women and girls in Africa opens a door for meeting their spiritual needs.
- Each kit contains a bookmark in an African dialect or in English, setting forth the Gospel in a clear and concise manner.
- Distributing kits opens doors for missionaries to share the Gospel.
- Distributing cloth pads also provides a platform to teach women and girls about personal hygiene and God's plan for sexual purity.

“I brought one kit in my suitcase...they were so excited that they were scrambling for the pads so the kit was divided up with five ladies getting one each...they are really eager to get more...”
